

This Month's Tip on Saving Tons of Money:

The first step is to instantly quit your job. I found that after doing this, and literally having no money, the family could no longer hit me up for dough. Though it will cause consternation for the first while, after a year or two people will realize that you mean it when you say, "I'm broke." As a result, my spouse and children have stopped asking, and I am able to use what paltry amount I have for myself.

For people living within the CHBC-TV viewing area, I can be seen on Roberts on the Road sometime soon. Unfortunately, at the time of this newsletter I don't have the exact date, but will tweet it @MoniSchiller or see my blog <http://www.fruitcake.ca/newsletter/index.php>

Hi again to those who received Newsletter #1, and Welcome! to those who didn't!

Thanks so much to the kind people who e mailed me and told me my inaugural newsletter gave them a bit of a laugh. Also thanks to those who took the time to point out that blind copying when sending bulk e mails is very important!

This month's tested recipe:

Smoked Salmon Pate

Put 8 tbsps. melted butter, slightly cooled, ½ lb bbq salmon tips, some black pepper and 1 tbsp lemon juice in a food processor. Blend until it resembles a paste, but don't overdo it. Whip 2/3 c. whipping cream and fold into the paste. Pipe onto crackers or simply let people spread it on themselves.

September's Puppy Training Tip - no more crying at night!

This is something my mom and her partner had to learn the hard way. They brought home their poodle puppy Schwartzie, locked her out of the bedroom, were bothered by her plaintive cries all night, and by morning she'd eaten one hearing aid. By night #2, however, they decided I was right: the only correct way to stop a puppy from crying is to stick him or her into your bed immediately. Sleep with the puppy, and you will not have so much as a whimper bothering you in the night.

Fall Gift Idea

As the weather starts to cool down and people begin retreating into their homes, they're more interested in indoor pursuits like reading. While it's hell to choose a book for someone, I find it's not that hard to pick an interesting magazine subscription. I must say that nothing perks me up as much as when I open the mailbox and see my Martha Stewart Living. I could certainly purchase it at any store, but for some reason, I don't. Plus, arriving like that it really feels like a surprise gift every single month. If you think about a person's hobbies and interests, you can probably find the right magazine for them.

If you wish to unsubscribe, please e mail me, and I will remove your name from the list!
